

STUDY ABROAD IN GÖTTINGEN

FACULTY OF BUSINESS AND ECONOMICS

When studying at the Faculty of Business and Economics as an international exchange student, you can benefit from a choice of English-taught courses, from living in Göttingen – a dynamic student city with the charm of a traditional German old town – and from a great international environment right in the heart of Germany. Join us for one or two semesters and experience the dynamic atmosphere and vibrant community that is the University of Göttingen!

Our academic offer:

- English-taught courses in the field of business and economics on undergraduate as well as graduate level. German-taught courses are available for students with German language skills.
- Please note: It is possible for exchange students to study entirely in English, but the English-taught course offer is more extensive in the winter semester than in the summer semester and is mainly addressed to advanced bachelor and master students.
- Erasmus+ students should take 60% of courses in business and economics, other courses can be taken from other faculties depending on their capacities.

Our language requirements:

- Fluent in English, at least level B2
- German level B2, if you wish to attend German-taught courses. Overall, German language skills can be beneficial for living in Göttingen, but are not mandatory.

Göttingen - your home away from home:

- Dynamic student city with a central campus and student dormitories near the city center
- Moderate costs of living compared to other German cities (around 650-850€ per month)
- Accommodation service for international students
- Buddy programmes and events to connect easily with a local network
- Free German language courses during the semester and intensive fee-based courses in September and March
- Welcome events and weekly office hours for support during your exchange semester
- Central location in Germany which makes it easy to discover the country
